

On 5 June 1930, a group of lovable larrikins, recently returned from war and on the back of the great depression, sought to bring the community together and give back to those who were in desperate need. They soon found a home and formed a club in a hut on Freshwater Beach.

And so, known for overcoming obstacles, they created a thriving venue to share a beer, have a chat and put the profits back into the community. Affectionately known at the time as the Dirty Diggers, this group had the vision to build a legacy that provided for the community; past, present and future.

DD Collective pays homage to the men and women who have come before us and led the way. To come together and enjoy the greater things in life, for the betterment of others.

It is our promise to continue in that vein.

Welcome to DD Collective.
